JD NEUHAUS ANNOUNCES FRAMES FOR COMPLETE AIR WINCH PRODUCT LINE

As we all know the life of winch can be a rough and tumble experience. JD Neuhaus now offers welded winch frames on all models. These sturdy frames can increase the life of your winch, by reducing wear and tear. The welded frame ensures protection to the underside of the winch during mounting and transport. Also, with the increased height, the JDN air winch can overcome small obstacles below the base in its mounting area.

Emma Neuhaus

PART FIVE: EMMA NEUHAUS

The fifth chapter in the story of JDN remains in the fourth generation. Sadly, Louis Neuhaus passed away at the age of 57. This left his wife Emma to take over sole responsibility for the family, house and the business. Emma was dedicated to the family business and had a deep appreciation for the history of JD Neuhaus. The consequences could have been disastrous if anyone else would have faced this trying times. Emma Neuhaus took overall responsibility for running the business, although she faced numerous hardships due to the loss of her husband. She struggled to find good workers and had to use an unskilled labor force, yet financial accounts for those times show she managed to make ends meet. In 1907 Emma was remarried to Wilhelm Müller, the foreman of the company. Wilhelm was an experienced smithy and helped JDN maintain its reputation for specialized and custom lifting equipment. In 1922 she handed over the whole property to her youngest son Max Neuhaus with the consent of Wilhelm and her other children.

OTC UPDATE

Attendance at the 2006 OTC reached 59,236, the highest attendance since 1982.

Attendees were able to learn about new technologies for finding the oil and gas to power the world's economy, as well as lessons learned in recovering from three Gulf of Mexico hurricanes -- Ivan, Katrina, and Rita.

The 2006 exhibit was bigger and better as well:

- 2,229 exhibitors from 30 countries
 - Two new air-conditioned Pavilions
 - Total exhibit space of nearly 470,000 square feet -- the equivalent of nearly 12 football fields!
- JDN participation was a tremendous success and we will return in 2007.
